a letter from the BOARD CHAIR

Dear Friends of the Lamb Center,

Thank you for an amazing year!

Your ongoing support and prayers are vital to the Lamb Center and all contribute to the incredible blessings that happen here: meals provided, served, and enjoyed; hearts warmed through small groups and Bible studies; caring attention brought to individuals' case management needs; job skills developed; and so much more.

Our jobs programs with Fairfax City and Fairfax County are in their 5th year and continue to thrive. Four days a week the team of workers from the Lamb Center is out cleaning city and county parks including trash pick-up, pruning, weeding, mulching, and planting.

Great progress is being made on our housing initiative. We continue to work with our many partners to obtain the approvals and funding to build a 54-unit apartment building, and were delighted to learn in June that this project was awarded Low Income Housing Tax Credits, a major step forward in funding. Our community is called Beacon Landing, a name suggested and chosen by our guests as it represents to them the future with a light of hope and a place to call home.

This year has seen a significant increase (over 11%) in the number of guests that enter our doors. We are so grateful for your support. It is through the generosity of over 100 congregations, more than 1,500 individual donors, dozens of local businesses, hundreds of volunteers, and the hard work of our staff that we have been able to continue to serve our neighbors.

Your support is what makes the Lamb Center able to strive to fulfill its mission--"To live out the compassionate heart of Christ by serving our neighbors experiencing homelessness."

With gratitude,

Cathy Liverman
TLC Board Chair

CASE MANAGEMENT

compassion in action

One morning, our Director of Case Management woke up to a flurry of text messages from her Lamb Center team, each one more alarming than the last.

"He fell trying to catch the bus."

"John is here. He's disoriented and in bad physical shape."

"He was just discharged from the hospital."

"He was supposed to have in-home health care, but it didn't happen..."

A month previously, "John," a star of the City Jobs team, came to work struggling for breath. Our Workforce Development Manager took him to Urgent Care, where John was transferred first to the hospital and then to rehab. Eventually, in the early morning hours, he was discharged from rehab without any supportive services. With no phone and in desperate need of help and food, he came to the Lamb Center.

The case management team spent the day in extremely concentrated teamwork, trading John from office to office. One case manager was coordinating with Medicaid to get a visiting nurse to his Veteran Affairs' subsidized apartment. Another case manager was replacing his lost phone. Yet another was arranging for home delivery of his oxygen. All these items and many more were needed for him to safely recover at home.

Not quite a month later, John's health stabilized. His oxygen levels became normal. He regained much of the weight he had lost and his primary care nurse practitioner cleared him to return to work. He is now applying to a grocery store adjacent to his apartment complex so he can walk to work!

This holistic care approach is offered to all of our guests who come to us seeking support and hope. Our case managers are dedicated to addressing diverse needs in the most comprehensive way possible.

CITY JOBS PROGRAM

steps toward self-sufficiency

"Dan" came to us in February 2019. He was an imposing man with a sweet smile and a great deal of shyness. Dan had significant barriers to employment and leasing: he had never learned how to read, had no driver's license, and had a criminal record. However, when he joined our City Jobs Program, he was the hardest worker anyone had ever seen. Dan moved in and out of rapid rehousing, and was one of the fortunate individuals who was housed with emergency funds from the CARES Act during the pandemic. He moved into an apartment in September 2021.

Unfortunately, when the CARES Act funding ended in fall of 2022, Dan returned to living in his car. The Lamb Center was heavily involved with his case and several other similar returns to homelessness, working to prevent them from being recorded as evictions and helping these guests re-enter housing as quickly as possible.

A friend of the Lamb Center who was interested in Dan's work ethic and unfazed by his barriers hired him to work in general construction shortly after he experienced homelessness again. Thanks to that income, Dan successfully applied to a Fairfax County low income housing program and moved to permanent housing in February 2023.

Our workforce development program provides steps towards self-sufficiency for our guests, helping them overcome common barriers to employment like Dan's.

PARTNER IMPACT

together in the mission

At the Lamb Center, we get to bear witness to some full-circle moments, where someone who received services from us gives back! One of those special moments happened in spring of 2023. Joseph Greenley, a former guest of the Lamb Center, has been in housing for many years now. He purchased needed items on our supply list and brought them by TLC in early May. It was amazing to see Joseph doing so well and giving back so generously to the Lamb Center.

In FY23, our faith partner organizations made a world of difference at the Lamb Center! We were blessed with generous financial partnerships with some of our faith partner organizations, such as Alfred Street Baptist Church and Saint Mary of Sorrows Catholic Church. We also received generosity through supply drives, such as Truro Anglican Church's water bottle drive in July, the hottest month of the year.

These partner stories are just a few of many we witness every day at the Lamb Center. Our mission is only made possible by the outpouring of gifts, supplies, volunteer services, and prayers from dedicated community partners!
